

CELEBRATING 75 YEARS OF INDIA'S INDEPENDENCE precise ... generous ... definite

—Pravara Kulkarni

comprehensive ... a treasure

—Aravind Trivedi

fresh ... masterly ... brilliant

—Aravind Kishore

converse CONTEMPORARY ENGLISH POETRY
by INDIANS

edited by SUDEEP SEN

Words Like Ships / 254
There Are No Shadows in the Dark / 254
Tamarind Seeds / 254
Keratitis / 255
Scavenger / 256
Windows / 256
Taveez / 257

1957 C. P. SURENDRAN

I Am Nearly Not Here / 258
All There / 261
Dolomedes Tenebrosus: Spontaneous Male Death
Bridge / 262
Prospect / 262
Options for an Old Man in a Far Room / 263
Self Portrait with Bandaged Ear / 263
Twelve Quatrains / 264

1. Autumn / 264
2. Potter / 264
3. Final Tryst / 265
4. Killer Squad Of 31 / 265
5. -Alfresco: Autumn Rain in Delhi / 265
6. Transit / 265
7. Nostalgia / 265
8. Narasimha's Truth / 265
9. Dawn / 266
10. Parting Gift / 266
11. Eternal / 266
12. Pari Mahal / 266

1958 NISHI CHAWLA

The Myth of a Divided Self / 267
Almost Two Brothers, Almost Varuna and Poseidon
Ardhanarishvara / 269
Bharata and Romulus / 269
My Adivasi Friend / 270

1958 JESSICA MOOKHERJEE

Alakshmi's Skin / 272
No Place Like Home / 273
Evolution of Language / 273
Radha / 274
Banshee / 275

1960

SHARMILA RAY

Ruins / 276
Perhaps / 276

Authoritative, intellectually rigorous, judiciously representative — a wide-ranging anthology — an updated, international map of the best of English-language poetry by Indians.

‘One is so grateful for the chance to read this sweeping, yet precise, generous yet definite collection, a compilation that both surprises and balm us, educates and consoles, shows a new path and re-affirms. My special thanks to the editor Sudeep Sen, a terrific poet in his own right, for this lucid and important introduction which deepened my understanding of contemporary poetics. Some anthologies of poetry can both redefine one’s understanding of what is possible and strengthen one’s knowledge of tradition. This is such a book.’

— ILYA KAMINSKY

‘Converse, published to celebrate 75 years of Indian independence, compiles a wide selection of English poetry by some of the most talented contemporary Indian poets. Edited and ably introduced by the renowned Sudeep Sen, this collection provides a comprehensive overview of Indian-English poetry, by established and emerging writers alike. ... the selected poems are well worth reading! A treasure.’

— SHASHI THAROOR

‘Compendium? Treasure trove? Aladdin’s cave? — none of these terms do justice to the richness of this book. This is the poetry collection I would want beside me on my deathbed, full of sensual delights and intellectual stimuli, roving through the years of India’s independence with fresh energy and curiosity. Here are old ‘friends’, who I have been reading most of my life — but there is also so much here that is new to me too. This is a collection I will be delving into for years to come. Converse shows that among the greatest achievements of India’s tryst with destiny are the range and vibrancy of her poets. It is a masterly and brilliant book.’

— ALASTAIR NIVEN, IVO OBE

PIPPA RANN books & media
LONDON, UK
£ 34.99 | ₹ 999

E book available

ISBN: 978-1-913738-31-0

